A Message from Brian Duperreault

In difficult times, you learn a lot about each other.

In 2017 – a record-breaking year for catastrophes – I witnessed firsthand the strength, generosity, tenacity, courage, and kindness that reside in the DNA of AIG's people.

One of the things I love most about my job is that as an insurance company, our work makes a difference in the lives of our clients every day. Through this, along with our commitment to being a good corporate citizen, we aim to step up and do the right thing whenever and wherever we can for those in need.

In this Corporate Citizenship Report, we are pleased to share stories about how we show up as a company for our clients, our communities and each other.

You'll read about how AIG employees donated generously toward disaster relief and other causes last year, raising nearly $6.5 million in employee gift matches through our 2:1 Matching Grants Program. This was in addition to approximately $11.7 million in corporate contributions to nearly 600 organizations in 30 countries across the globe.

Our people also donated something priceless: their time. In 2017, AIG colleagues dedicated over 54,000 hours to causes that were meaningful to them. During our annual Global Volunteer Month in April alone, nearly 3,400 AIG employees contributed over 10,000 hours to more than 150 projects in 25 countries.

Thousands of AIG employees supported our global partners – including Rise Against Hunger, which distributes meals to those in need internationally, and to Junior Achievement, which teaches financial literacy and entrepreneurship to young people.

We also made a positive impact through our more than 100 Employee Resource Groups (ERGs) worldwide, whose 12,000 members help us celebrate the diversity of our workforce. That respect for our differences is ultimately carried home to the communities where we live and work, promoting greater acceptance and open-mindedness globally.

I'm so proud of our colleagues worldwide who give of themselves toward a greater good. I believe that the best hope for building a brighter tomorrow can be found in our actions today.

Sincerely,

Brian Duperreault, President and CEO

Sustainability in Practice

What we do today impacts our business and our world tomorrow. AIG is committed to reducing its carbon footprint and promoting sustainable business practices across the company. Our people are engaged on sustainability issues through products, services and industry relationships. While we are making significant strides in building a more sustainable company, we know there is more work to be done. We will continue to focus on the impact we're having on our clients, investors, employees, the communities where we have a business presence and the environment. It all works together and is a long-term investment.

Technology Investments

AIG has made a commitment to investing in technology to operate more sustainably.

- 90,000+ devices recycled
- 13,500 devices reused
- 9% reduction in power consumption through infrastructure and facilities modernization
- Reduced commuter footprint through increased electronic collaboration, including telepresence and webcasting capabilities

Sustainable Consumption

AIG's NYC headquarters has partnered with Rescuing Leftover Cuisine to help eliminate food waste onsite.

- 18,522 pounds of food rescued
- 15,435 meals provided with rescued food
- 6,946 pounds of CO₂ equivalent avoided

Paper Reduction Efforts

In 2016, AIG initiated a campaign to reduce paper waste and cost across its U.S. operations. The program continued in 2017, resulting in a 174 ton reduction (32%) compared to 2016.

- Trees saved – 4,173
- Paper saved – 174 tons
- Electricity saved – 700,000+ kWh
- Water saved – 1.2+ million gallons
- Air pollution prevented – 5 tons of CO₂
- Landfill consumption prevented – 522 cubic yards

Document lifecycle costs were reduced by 39% compared to 2016:

- 30% reduction in copy paper purchases
- 33% reduction in internal print services
- 18% reduction in postage & shipping costs
- 53% reduction in file disposal costs

Sustainability Working Group

As a 40-member global team spanning all major business and functional areas, the group meets regularly to advise on sustainability issues, share best practices and work toward building sustainability solutions. In 2018, this work has been elevated with the formation of a Sustainability Task Force, charged with conducting a comprehensive assessment of current sustainability practices and opportunities to enhance our efforts. The results will help drive the direction of our strategic approach to sustainability.

Eco-Office Label

AIG Singapore was the first and only insurer to obtain this highly regarded certification assessing an office's environmental performance. They are currently working on implementing a number of sustainability practices, including decreasing the number of printed personal insurance policies and making all policies available online by 2020.

Sustainable Investments

AIG invests in E-CO, one of Norway's leading energy groups. Its core activities are the ownership, operation and development of hydroelectric power plants.

Renewable Investments

AIG has been a leading investor in renewable energy projects for more than 30 years. The company is also a leading investor in green energy projects, such as waste-to-energy, fuel-cell, transmission and distributed generation.

AIG Environmental Social and Governance (ESG) Dividend Fund:

Launched in 2016, this fund uses ESG practices and a rules-based investment approach to seek capital appreciation and current income with a positive social impact.

"A growing number of companies are incorporating ESG standards into their business models and are finding that by addressing environmental, social and governance issues, they have the potential to improve financial returns."

Disaster Resilience

2017 was a year of unprecedented catastrophes, and one of the most active hurricane seasons on record. Here are a few examples of how AIG supported impacted communities.

Confirming Employee Safety

Houston is home to over 3,000 AIG employees. When Hurricane Harvey made landfall in Houston, AIG's first priority was to account for the safety of every employee and to deploy resources to assist in rescue efforts of stranded AIG employees.

Colleagues Helping Colleagues

AIG employees from near and far stepped up to support one another. On the ground, colleagues used water vehicles, including canoes, to rescue those trapped in rising water. Others volunteered to clean out flooded houses and assist at local food banks, and bilingual staff members helped translate Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) forms at a community clinic. A global "Support an AIG Family" campaign raised donations for colleagues in need.

Watch now:
AIG's Houston Heroes video

Commitment to the Community

AIG donated $1,000,000 to Hurricane Harvey Relief, with $500,000 to support five local nonprofit organizations that AIG and its employees have relationships with through employee volunteerism. The remaining $500,000 was directed toward medium- and longer-term recovery efforts through the Center for Disaster Philanthropy.

Watch now:
Moments that Matter: Puerto Rico

Protecting Employees and Clients

Irma's path of destruction covered a large region across the Southeast U.S. and the Caribbean. Puerto Rico then braced for Hurricane Maria, which caused unprecedented devastation to the island. As each of the hurricanes approached, AIG adjusters and engineers were already in place across regions, proactively offering clients guidance and setting up to fulfill claims. In the aftermath of the storms, AIG Global Security, AIG Travel and Human Resources coordinated with local management teams to ensure 100 percent of employees were safe and accounted for. Due to the devastation to Puerto Rico's electrical grid, AIG purchased and delivered portable generators and fuel to local employees. The spirit of AIG was evident during this time, colleagues were dedicated to helping their clients, rebuilding the community and supporting one another.

Microinsurance

Solutions to Meet an Emerging Demand

Access to insurance for indigent individuals is often scarce or non-existent, and some turn to local governmental or other agencies for support. Microinsurance provides affordable protection to people who are generally not covered by government programs or traditional insurance.

AIG was one of the first companies to offer microinsurance when we began offering solutions in Uganda in 1997.

Blue Marble

AIG is a proud member of Blue Marble, a consortium of nine companies that collaborates to extend socially impactful, commercially viable insurance to the underserved. Members of the consortium leverage the talent of their workforce by temporarily assigning a group of employees to serve as a small core management team to implement microinsurance solutions. This allows the companies to innovate in emerging markets and learn from them, yielding positive results toward Blue Marble's commitment to value creation and offering employees meaningful professional development opportunities.

"AIG has been a pioneer in micro-insurance, offering a means for the underserved to mitigate their risks and have suitable insurance protection. Joining forces with the other eight Blue Marble consortium companies puts us in an even stronger position to offer meaningful insurance products and provide enduring protection for individuals, families and communities around the world."

Gaurav D. Garg, CEO Personal Insurance and Chairman of Blue Marble

Microinsurance in India

Tata AIG has been an active player in the Indian microinsurance space, which includes rural and social insurance segments. In 2017, 1.38 million farmers were covered under a program protecting around 10 million hectares of crops. Modern technology such as mobile application and satellite imageries were used for the implementation and monitoring.

Innovative Partnerships

Enactus, Wood plc and Rockefeller Foundation Partnership

AIG partners with Enactus, Wood plc and the Rockefeller Foundation's 100 Resilient Cities initiative to focus on the challenges cities face.

- Enactus connects AIG to the global student social entrepreneur community, acting as an external innovation incubator to help develop ideas on how to empower locals with business-driven solutions to societal issues.
- Wood plc provides leading engineering expertise to design and implement a resilience project.
- The Rockefeller Foundation provides grants to 100 cities to hire a Chief Resilience Officer (CRO) who reports directly to the mayor. This ensures direct access to CROs so that AIG, Enactus and Wood plc can best understand what their challenges are, and help them design for resilience.

Clemson University Risk Engineering & System Analytics (RESA) Center

The RESA Center was established in 2015 through AIG funding. 2017 marked the first year under sustained operations.

- Research: RESA and AIG collaborated on 18 individual research projects supporting 10 faculty, eight post-doctorates and over 15 PhD and master's level students, resulting in 14 peer-reviewed journal articles, 14 conference publications and eight internal reports.
- Training: Through RESA and the AIG training program, the Greenville area has hosted over 24 classes and 321 visitors from AIG.
- Education: Thirty students received a Certificate in Risk Engineering. In March, two graduate certificates and a Master's of Engineering degree program were approved.

GOVERNANCE

Ensuring AIG operates as a good corporate citizen.

Governance

AIG's corporate governance helps ensure the independent and effective functioning of the Board of Directors. In addition, governance practices foster transparency and clear communication with stakeholders, as well as promote high ethical standards and integrity in financial reporting.

- AIG has a highly engaged Board with balanced tenure and the substantial and diverse expertise necessary to evaluate and oversee strategy and performance.
- An independent Chairman is required in AIG's bylaws.
- The Independent Chairman's role is clearly defined, and the Chairman generally does not serve longer than a five-year term.
- Directors are elected annually by a majority of votes cast (in uncontested elections).
- All directors are independent (except the CEO).
- Former AIG CEOs cannot serve on the Board.
- The Board, through the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee, conducts annual evaluations of the Board and individual directors, and all Board Committees conduct annual self-evaluations.
- No director attending less than 75% of meetings for two consecutive years will be re-nominated.
- Directors generally may not stand for election after reaching age 75.
- All directors may contribute to the agenda for Board meetings.
- The Board Committee structure is organized around key strategic issues and designed to facilitate dialogue and efficiency.
- Board Committee Chairs generally do not serve longer than a five-year term.
- The Board provides strong risk management oversight including through the Risk and Capital Committee, Audit Committee and other Board Committees.
- AIG has an extensive shareholder engagement program with director participation.
- AIG's bylaws include a proxy access right for shareholders.

"AIG's Board is committed to representing the long-term interests of all of AIG's stakeholders. The Board believes that its diverse and complementary set of skills creates a strong, well-functioning, highly qualified and independent Board of Directors with the necessary expertise and experience to oversee the company."

Doug Steenland, Independent Chairman of the Board

Compliance

AIG Global Compliance Group (GCG) has oversight responsibility for managing compliance risks and sustaining compliance management across AIG's businesses, functions, legal entities and countries of operation. GCG oversees compliance risks across the enterprise through policy and procedure development and implementation, risk assessments, monitoring and testing, training and advisory activities. AIG is committed to complying with the letter and spirit of the laws and regulations governing all of our business activities. See AIG Code of Conduct

Contacting Corporate Compliance

AIG encourages employees to voice their concerns and prohibits retaliatory actions against anyone who, in good faith, reports suspected violations of laws, regulations or policies. Employees can report ethical concerns anonymously (where permitted by law) to the Compliance Group in various ways, including a toll-free global help line available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, in multiple languages.

Governance

Political Engagement

AIG may make political contributions and engage in political activities in support of candidates and parties at the federal and state levels where applicable laws and regulations permit. It is the policy of AIG that employees involved in lobbying, advocacy and political activities do so in accordance with the AIG Code of Conduct, AIG and AIG-related Entity Policies, Standards, Procedures, Guidelines or other policy-related documents, and in accordance with all applicable registration, disclosure and other laws, rules and regulations governing such activities.

Global Security

AIG Global Security ensures that employees and clients throughout the world have access to comprehensive crisis response services. AIG Global Security leverages new tracking technologies to increase its monitoring and response capabilities. AIG's Business Continuity program aligns business strategy and principles with the requirements of our customers and our employees.

Enterprise Risk Management

Risk management includes the identification and measurement of various forms of risk, the establishment of risk thresholds and the creation of processes intended to maintain risks within these thresholds while optimizing returns. AIG's risk management is an integral part of managing its core businesses and a key element of its approach to corporate governance.

Cybersecurity

AIG looks at cybersecurity as both:

- An employer protecting the company from cyber threats in partnership with AIG colleagues.
- An insurer leading the way to help companies and consumers mitigate their cyber risk, working with our clients and distribution partners.

AIG offers:

- Internal training for all employees.
- 24/7 Cyber Defense Center to quickly detect and contain cybersecurity threats to employee, client and company data.
- Cybersecurity Awareness Month to inform employees of the actions they can take to protect themselves, their families and our company from cyber threats.
- Thought leadership on cybersecurity.
